1. Claims 1-11 and 63-70 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on March 2, 2007.

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 12-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 12 recites a second means and a third means but does not set forth a first means. This renders the claim indefinite.

Claims 13-19, dependent on claim 12, falls therewith.

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Molter et al. and Halter et al. both teach separate electrolysis cells and fuel cells for an energy system while McElroy et al. sets forth a reversible fuel cell that can function in both an electrolysis mode and a fuel cell mode.

5. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: none of the prior art of record teaches a reversible fuel cell system which functions in both a fuel cell mode and in an electrolysis mode and wherein excess reactant product from outside the system is provided to the system functioning in the electrolysis mode, in addition to or instead of the reactant product produced by the system when functioning in the fuel cell mode. Thus fuel in excess required by the system functioning in the fuel cell mode is produced over a predetermined number of cycles. Also, a means for removing excess fuel generated during the electrolysis mode is provided. The prior art of record does not teach the above concept in a reversible fuel cell system.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
